Alba (Scotland): Past and present

State of Gàidhlig in 1891:

The language had apparently declined in use since the 1870s as the age structure of the Gàidhlig speaking community suggests. It is quite clear that Caladar (Cawdor) had been a genuine part of the Gàidhlig speaking world as also locally born people were returned as speaking the traditional language as well as English.

Gàidhlig was less strong in the village (26.6%) than in some other locations nearby like Baile nan Coitear & Baile an Todhair (Cotterton & Ballintore) where 64.3% still spoke the language.

Area description:

This factsheet is concerned with the village of Caladar (Cawdor) and some of its neighbouring hamlets around Baile an Lagain (Ballagan) and Ruigh Ailean (Ruallan) in the former county of Narann (Nairn).

Apart from the more diversified occupations in the village itself most residents were living from the land either as farmers or agricultural labourers or servants.

Background of Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Profiles:

The 1891 census was the first such enumeration exercise with an unequivocal language question. After more than 100 years the original census forms are publicly available for detailed analysis. During research concerned with the “Gàidhlig (Scottish Gaelic) Local Studies” a vast number of such local statistics have been gathered about the Gàidhlig speaking population of Scotland in that year. As many of these results could not be included in the reports these concise fact-sheets are a welcome way to publish some of the “local gems”. Place of birth and Gàidhlig speaking:

Roughly 25 % of locally born persons did also speak Gàidhlig. Those from the Gaidhealtachd itself were of course predominantly Gàidhlig speaking. Residents born elsewhere were highly unlikely to speak anything other than English – which in most cases would have been Lowland Scots/Doric.

Notes:

² Born in other parishes of Scotland with more than 50 % Gàidhlig speakers in the 1891 census.

Speakers according to place of birth (1) nearby¹ (2) in remaining Gaidhealtachd ², or (3) elsewhere

Remarks:

- In original census report terms, the district had a population of 269 persons of all ages. There was one Gàidhlig monolingual person counted in this area and in addition 80 enumerated inhabitants spoke “Gaelic and English”. This led to an “official” share of Gàidhlig speakers of 30.1 %. This figure was a slight under-estimate of 1.7 % of the figures of the usually resident population.
- The single monolingual Gàidhlig speaker found was the 79-year-old wife of a forester in Dubh Ghlac. She was born in Inbhirnis (Inverness).
